Course Title: Field Work in Community Setting
Credits Equivalent: 04 Credits

Course Description:

This course is part of an initiative by the university wherein each department in the university has to offer a course that helps in making university education relevant to the local community and provide meaningful solutions through local interventions using locally available resources, skills and traditional knowledge. The purpose is to establish sustainable university-community linkages so that students get an exposure to real-life problems & issues and develop skills in formulating projects and proposals for experimenting workable solutions. The ultimate goal of the university/department is to foster a spirit of community engagement and scientific temper that initiates a process of change in the society and instils in the learner a sense of connectedness and ownership.

Learning Outcomes:

- To acquaint students with process of need-identification, identification of social issues & problem, undertake structured research in identified areas in the community and develop models of intervention.
- To undertake activities in the selected villages as part of Community Engagement Programme.
- To initiate a dynamic interaction between the University and local community to comprehend ideas for the betterment of the lives of the villagers.
- To sensitize students to the living conditions in rural areas and the cultural ethos of rural communities.
- To develop a comprehensive understanding of the demographic, socio-economic composition and felt needs of the villages.
- To design and implement interventions within the purview of the University in light of the felt needs.
- To generate awareness and sensitize the rural community about the Governmental schemes and programmes.
- To collect & collate, nurture and preserve indigenous knowledge leading to the promotion of the rich rural heritage.
- To create synergy between the rural needs & aspiration and to facilitate the bridging of the void between the 'book-view' (etic) and the 'field-view' (emic).
- To infuse the field insights into the teaching-learning and encourage pedagogical innovations
