 2. Candidate's particulars including Category and Person with Disability (PwD) have been indicated as mentioned by the candidate in the online application form.
 3. NTA Scores are normalised scores across multi session papers and are based on the relative performance of all those who appeared for the examination in one session. The marks obtained are transformed into a scale ranging from 100 to 0 for each session of examinees.
 The NAT Score influences of a Candidate who have scored EQUAL TO OR BELOW (same or lower raw scores) that particular candidate in that session.
 The Percentile scores of a Candidate have been calculated as follows:
 100 X Number of candidates appeared in the 'Session' with raw score EQUAL TO OR LESS than the candidates
 100 X Number of candidates appeared in the 'Session'
 Total number of the Candidates appeared in the 'Session'
 Total number of the Candidates appeared in the 'Session'
 Total number of the Score is not the same as percentage of marks obtained.

Graduate Aptitude Test in Engineering (GATE) 2021 was organized by Indian Institute of Technology Bombay on behalf of the National Coordination Board (NCB) - GATE for the Department of Higher Education, Ministry of Education (MoE), Government of India

The GATE 2021 score is calculated using the formula

GATE Score =
$$S_q + (S_t - S_q) \frac{(M - M_q)}{(\overline{M}_t - M_q)}$$

where,

M is the marks obtained by the candidate in the paper, mentioned on this GATE 2021 scorecard

Me is the qualifying marks for general category candidate in the paper

1

M, is the mean of marks of top 0.1% or top 10 (whichever is larger) of the candidates who appeared in the paper (in case of multi-session papers including all sessions)

S_a = 350, is the score assigned to M_a

 $S_t = 900$, is the score assigned to \overline{M}_t

In the GATE 2021 score formula, M_q is 25 marks (out of 100) or $\mu + \sigma$, whichever is greater. Here μ is the mean and σ is the standard deviation of marks of all the candidates who appeared in the paper.

Qualifying in GATE 2021 does not guarantee either an admission to a post-graduate program or a scholarship/assistantship. Admitting institutes may conduct further tests and interviews for final selection.

Qualifying in GATE 2020 does not guarantee either an admission to a post-graduate programme or a scholarship/assistantship. Admitting institutes may conduct further tests or interviews for final selection.

In the GATE 2020, the qualifying marks for a general category candidate in each paper is $\mu + \sigma$ or 25 marks (out of 100), whichever is greater, where μ is the mean and σ is the standard deviation of marks of all the candidates who appeared in the paper. The qualifying marks for OBC(NCL) and SC/ST/PwD candidates are 90% and two-third of a general category candidate in the paper respectively.

The GATE 2020 score was calculated using the formula

GATE Score =
$$S_q + (S_t - S_q) \frac{(M - M_q)}{(\overline{M}_t - M_q)}$$

where

M is marks (out of 100) obtained by the candidate in the paper

 M_q is the qualifying marks for general category candidate in the paper

- \overline{M}_t is the mean of marks of top 0.1% or top 10 (whichever is greater) of the candidates who appeared in the paper (in case of multi-session papers including all sessions)
- $S_q = 350$, is the score assigned to M_q

 $S_t = 900$, is the score assigned to \overline{M}_t

In multi-session (Civil Engineering and Mechanical Engineering) papers, the normalized mark of j^{th} candidate in the i^{th} session \widehat{M}_{ij} was computed using the formula

$$\widehat{M}_{ij} = \frac{\overline{M}_t^g - M_q^g}{\overline{M}_{ti} - M_{iq}} (M_{ij} - M_{iq}) + M_q^g$$

where

 M_{ij} is the actual marks obtained by the j^{th} candidate in i^{th} session

 $\bar{M}_t^{\bar{g}}$ is the average marks of the top 0.1% of the candidates considering all sessions

 $M_a^{\bar{g}}$ is the sum of mean and standard deviation marks of the candidates in the paper considering all sessions

 \overline{M}_{ti} is the average marks of the top 0.1% of the candidates in the *i*th session

Qualifying in GATE 2020 does not guarantee either an admission to a post-graduate programme or a scholarship/assistantship. Admitting institutes may conduct further tests or interviews for final selection.

In the GATE 2020, the qualifying marks for a general category candidate in each paper is $\mu + \sigma$ or 25 marks (out of 100), whichever is greater, where μ is the mean and σ is the standard deviation of marks of all the candidates who appeared in the paper. The qualifying marks for OBC(NCL) and SC/ST/PwD candidates are 90% and two-third of a general category candidate in the paper respectively.

The GATE 2020 score was calculated using the formula

$$GATE \ Score = S_q + (S_t - S_q) \frac{(M - M_q)}{(M_t - M_q)}$$

where

M is marks (out of 100) obtained by the candidate in the paper

Me is the qualifying marks for general category candidate in the paper

*M*_t is the mean of marks of top 0.1% or top 10 (whichever is greater) of the candidates who appeared in the paper (in case of multi-session papers including all sessions)

- $S_q = 350$, is the score assigned to M_q
- $S_1 = 900$, is the score assigned to M_1

In multi-session (Civil Engineering and Mechanical Engineering) papers, the normalized mark of J^{th} candidate in the l^{th} session \hat{H}_{ij} was computed using the formula

$$\bar{M}_{ij} = \frac{\bar{M}_{i}^{g} - M_{q}^{g}}{\bar{M}_{ii} - M_{iq}} (M_{ij} - M_{iq}) + M_{q}^{g}$$

where

M₁₁ is the actual marks obtained by the Jth candidate in Ith session

M, is the average marks of the top 0.1% of the candidates considering all sessions

M² is the sum of mean and standard deviation marks of the candidates in the paper considering all sessions

Bee is the average marks of the top 0.1% of the candidates in the 1th session

Mig is the sum of the mean marks and standard deviation of the 1th session

Qualifying in GATE 2020 does not guarantee either an admission to a post-graduate programme or a scholarship/assistantship. Admitting institutes may conduct further tests or interviews for final selection.

In the GATE 2020, the qualifying marks for a general category candidate in each paper is $\mu + \sigma$ or 25 marks (out of 100), whichever is greater, where μ is the mean and σ is the standard deviation of marks of all the candidates who appeared in the paper. The qualifying marks for OBC(NCL) and SC/ST/PwD candidates are 90% and two-third of a general category candidate in the paper respectively.

The GATE 2020 score was calculated using the formula

$$GATE \ Score = S_q + (S_t - S_q) \frac{(M - M_q)}{(\overline{M}_t - M_q)}$$

where

M is marks (out of 100) obtained by the candidate in the paper

 M_q is the qualifying marks for general category candidate in the paper

 \overline{M}_t is the mean of marks of top 0.1% or top 10 (whichever is greater) of the candidates who appeared in the paper (in case of

$$\widehat{M}_{ij} = \frac{M_t^g - M_q^g}{\overline{M}_{tl} - M_{iq}} \left(M_{ij} - M_{iq} \right) + M_q^g$$

where

 M_{ij} is the actual marks obtained by the j^{th} candidate in i^{th} session

 \bar{M}_{t}^{g} is the average marks of the top 0.1% of the candidates considering all sessions

 M_q^g is the sum of mean and standard deviation marks of the candidates in the paper considering all sessions

 \vec{M}_{ti} is the average marks of the top 0.1% of the candidates in the i^{th} session

 M_{iq} is the sum of the mean marks and standard deviation of the t^{th} session

GATE Score =
$$S_q + (S_t - S_q) \frac{(M - M_q)}{(\overline{M}_t - M_q)}$$

where,

M is the marks obtained by the candidate in the paper, mentioned on this GATE 2021 scorecard

 M_{\circ} is the qualifying marks for general category candidate in the paper

M, is the mean of marks of top 0.1% or top 10 (whichever is larger) of the candidates who appeared in the paper (in case of multi-session papers including all sessions) $S_{o} = 350$, is the score assigned to M_{o}

 $S_i = 900$, is the score assigned to \overline{M}_i ,

In the GATE 2021 score formula, M_q is 25 marks (out of 100) or $\mu + \sigma$, whichever is greater. Here μ is the mean and σ is the standard deviation of marks of all the candidates who appeared in the paper

Published: 14 November 2020

Abstract: This article discusses a concept for developing a vision-based sensing system for measuring the velocity of an object which is based on the concept of apparent size. Objects at a finite distance from the eye look smaller than their real dimension. Movement of the object causes to change in its apparent size. In this work a mathematical relation is obtained which relates infinitesimal change in apparent size to the infinitesimal change in spatial coordinates of the object in the form of an ordinary differential equation. A mechanical device is fabricated for measuring the apparent size. Then by knowing the change in apparent size due to motion, change in displacement is calculated. Experiments were conducted to measure the average velocity of regular shaped object based on the change in its apparent size due to its motion. The average magnitude of error between average velocity calculated from the change in apparent size through the equation and from the actual displacement is about 2% and it is varying in between 0% and 5%. Results show the possibility to develop a vision sensor system to measure the velocity of objects by using high-speed cameras when the real size of the object is known and also it may be possible to develop vision velocity sensors for mobile robot applications.

Keywords: measurement; apparent size; velocity; vision-based sensing; camera

1. Introduction

Sensors play a key role in mechatronic and robotic systems [1]. Velocity is one of the important physical quantities which has to be continuously measured in various mechanical systems such as robotic systems. For example, an end effectors position and velocity have to be continuously monitored for the successful operation of the robot [2,3]. Various sensors are available as internal (Encoders, LVDT (Linear Variable Differential Transformer), Tachometer, Hall effect sensor and etc.) and external (Proximity, Microwave, Ultrasonic, Vision sensors and etc.) sensors for positioning and velocity measurement in mechanical systems [2]. In this article, we describe a concept to develop a vision-based sensing system for measuring the velocity of the objects which is based on the apparent size of a moving object.

1.1. Vision-Based Velocity Sensors

Vision/Camera-based sensors have been reported in the literature for general and robotic applications [1,3–5]. Vision-based sensing systems are developed for positioning, tracking of external objects [3,6]. In vision sensing systems, change in spatial position of the object is determined by change in its coordinates in the image of the camera [4,6,7]. Change in the relative position of the object in the image is mapped to the real distance travelled by the object and hence the velocity of the object is obtained [4,6]. This technique can be applied to estimate speed of the road vehicles [7]. However, this technique may not work if the object is moving exactly along the optical axis of the camera where change in the relative position of the object in the image is negligible. Depth of the object from the camera sensor changes in this case which can be estimated by using a pair of images of the object where the appropriate line segments from the images are used to obtain the depth [8,9]. However, these are not real-time techniques. Calculation of real-time depth of an object is impossible with the single image [10]. Stereo camera systems (multiple camera sensors) are used to measure the depth of the object, thereby estimating instantaneous depth velocity of the object [10,11]. In all of the above studies, detection of the object velocity is based on the calculation of change in the relative position of the object in the image of the camera and size of the object does not play any role. The current article presents an another possible way to estimate the depth velocity of the object, even when it travels along the optical axis of the camera. This is based on the concept of change in the apparent size of an object due to its motion.

1.2. Apparent Dimesion of an Object

Objects at a distance look smaller than their real dimensions. For example, size of the moon can be fit into a coin at a distance near to the eye. This is called apparent size and is always less than the original dimension of the object [12]. They look smaller because of the decrease in the angle made by the light rays at the eye coming from the boundary of the object which is shown in Figure 1 The apparent size of an object can be measured anywhere in-between object position and the eye.

So when the object is in linear motion without rotation, its apparent size varies at a fixed measurement point which is the basis for the current work. Rate of change of apparent size is an indication of the rate of change of position of the object which is also discussed in the literature [12]. Thus the rate of change of apparent size of an object is directly related to the instantaneous velocity of the object. Depth velocity of objects can be estimated by using stereo camera system as discussed where the object is considered to be a point object [3,10]. In this work, we present another possibility to estimate instantaneous velocity an object in real-time with a single lens camera when the real size of the object is known and dimensions of the object play crucial role in the present technique.

2. Mathematical Analysis

So, from the previous discussion it is clear that the apparent size of the object changes when it is in motion. All we need is to find the infinitesimal change in the displacement for an infinitesimal change in the apparent size of the object. Consider a two dimensional object moving in the x - y coordinate system as shown in Figure 2a, edges ab and ef are parallel to the x and y axes which are the real sizes of the object along the respective axes. Let the center of mass of the object displace dx and dy with initial coordinates (x, y) without rotation of the object.

Figure 2. (a) A 2-D object (polygon) in the x - y coordinate system; (b) change in apparent size of the edge ef for a dx movement along the x axis.

For this analysis it is assumed that the axis of the lens of the eye passes through the mid-point of the edge. First let us consider displacement along the x axis, Figure 2b shows the two instances of the object making a dx movement. It can be seen from Figure 2b that the apparent size of the edge ef is decreased for a positive movement of dx. The apparent size of the edge ef is measured along y at a distance ρ_x from the eye. As shown in Figure 2b, dr_y is the change in the apparent size of the edge ef and r_y is the apparent size. From geometric analysis of this situation we can arrive at the following ordinary differential equation.

$$\frac{R_{y}\rho_{x}}{r_{y}^{2}}\frac{dr_{y}}{dx} - \frac{dr_{y}}{r_{y}} = 1,$$

When dr_y is positive, the object is reaching the eye and if it is negative then the object is going away from the eye. Based on this direction velocity can be found. Similarly, considering a displacement of dy the in the y direction gives the following ordinary differential equation.

$$\frac{R_x \rho_y}{r_x^2} \frac{dr_x}{dy} - \frac{dr_x}{r_x} = 1,$$ where, R_x is the real size or length of the edge ab along the x axis, ρ_y is the distance from the eye for measuring the apparent size of the edge and r_x is the apparent size of the edge at a particular instant of time. This can be expanded to the 3-Dimensional (3-D) case by considering a 3-D object moving in an x - y - z coordinate system. In this case, we will have 2-Dimensional (2-D) projections of the object on three mutually perpendicular planes. The following ordinary differential equations relate the change in the apparent size of the edges considered from the surfaces of the object, which are parallel to the three mutually perpendicular planes (xy, yz, xz), to the change in spatial coordinates of the object in three mutually perpendicular coordinates (x, y, z).

$$\frac{R_{xy}\rho_z}{r_{xy}^2}\frac{dr_{xy}}{dz} - \frac{dr_{xy}}{r_{xy}} = 1,$$
(3)

$$\frac{R_{xz}\rho_{y}}{r_{xz}^{2}}\frac{dr_{xz}}{dy} - \frac{dr_{xz}}{r_{xz}} = 1,$$
(4)

$$\frac{R_{yz}\rho_x}{r_{yz}^2}\frac{dr_{yz}}{dx} - \frac{dr_{yz}}{r_{yz}} = 1,$$

where, R_{xy} , R_{xz} and R_{yz} are real sizes of line elements calculated from orthotropic projections of the edges of the object considered from the faces of the object which are parallel to the xy, xz and yz planes. ρ_x , ρ_y and ρ_z are the measurement distances of apparent sizes from the eye in x, y and z directions, respectively. r_{xy} , r_{xz} and r_{yz} are calculated from apparent sizes of the object on three mutually perpendicular planes. This can be understood by visualizing a cube of edge length l is moving in a x - y - z coordinate system such that three of its faces are parallel to three mutually perpendicular planes. Consider a line element/edge from a face which is parallel to the x - y plane and a diagonal line is one of the possibilities. If the cube is moving in the xy plane without rotation, change in apparent size of the diagonal is zero in that plane which suggests that its velocity is zero along the z direction. Apparent sizes of the diagonal lines of the faces parallel to the xz and yz planes change due to this motion and hence components of velocities along x and ydirections can be found. Equations (3)–(5) are expressed in the following matrix form. These are obtained by dividing the Equations (3)–(5) by change in time. The selected edge/line has to be perpendicular to the optical axis which is a limitation of this technique.

where $V_x = \frac{dx}{dt}$, $V_y = \frac{dy}{dt}$ and $V_z = \frac{dz}{dt}$ are velocities of the object in x, y and z directions, respectively, and $\frac{dr_{yz}}{dt}$, $\frac{dr_{xz}}{dt}$ and $\frac{dr_{xy}}{dt}$ are rates of change of apparent sizes.

3. Experiments and Discussion

Figure 3a shows the Solidworks model of the mechanical device for measuring the apparent size of the object. The apparent size of the object is fit into both metal strips by manually moving sliders with the help of handles. A rectangular shaped (112 cm length, 10 cm width and 1 cm thickness) wooden object was chosen for the experiments. The longest edge of the object was kept parallel to the y axis and its apparent size was measured for different positions by moving it along the x direction which is along the axis of the lens of the eye or viewing direction of the device. During experimentation it was ensured that the centerline of the device/axis of eye is passing through the center of the object. Distance from the eye to the measurement point of the device was 24.5 cm which is ρ_x and the real size (R_y) of the object was 112 cm. Figure 3b shows the variation of the apparent size of the object with respect to distance from the measurement point. It can be clearly seen from the Figure 3b that apparent size is a non-linear function of the displacement which is a well-known fact [12]. For the velocity measurements, object is moved slowly away from the device simultaneously measuring the apparent size and time at two instances. Then from the change in the apparent size displacement of the object is calculated and velocity is obtained by dividing it with the change in time. Table 1 shows the average velocity of the object calculated form the change in apparent size and the actual average velocity obtained from the repeated experiments. Accurate measurement of displacement will ensure the accurate velocity.

6.	-600	-609.87	-15	-15.24	1.6

Figure 4 shows the variation of magnitude of the error with change in the displacement of the object. It can be seen that it is varying in between 0% and 5% and there may not be any specific variation with the displacement of the object. Accurate measurement of apparent size by the precise instrument may decrease the error magnitude and high-speed camera may enable us to measure the change in apparent size accurately.

So measuring the infinitesimal change in the apparent size will enable us to estimate the instantaneous velocity of the object if the real size of the object is known. Thus it may be possible to develop a vision-based sensing system for measuring object velocity in three directions (x, y, z), two components can be obtained from the change in the relative position of the object in the image of the camera [4] and one from the change in the apparent size of the object.

4. Conclusions

This concept may show another possibility for measuring the real-time instantaneous velocity of an object from the change in its apparent dimension when the real size of the object is known. A mechanical device for measuring the apparent size is fabricated and the average velocity of an object is measured from the change in its apparent size. A 2% of average error magnitude was observed between actual average velocity and the one calculated from the change in apparent dimension. The error magnitude varied in between 0% and 5%. With this technique, it may be possible to develop a vision-based sensing system for mobile robot applications for measuring velocity of the robot. It may also possible to measure the acceleration of the object in real-time.

$$GATE \ Score = S_q + (S_t - S_q) \frac{(M - M_q)}{(\overline{M}_t - M_q)}$$

where,

M is the marks obtained by the candidate in the paper, mentioned on this score card in GATE 2017

 M_a is the qualifying marks for general category candidate in the paper

 \overline{M}_{t} is the mean of marks of top 0.1% or top 10 (whichever is larger) of the candidates who appeared in the paper (in case of multi-session papers including all sessions)

 $S_a = 350$, is the score assigned to M_a

 $S_t = 900$, is the score assigned to \overline{M}_t

In the GATE 2017 score formula, M_q is usually 25 marks (out of 100) or $\mu + \sigma$, whichever is greater. Here μ is the mean and σ is the standard deviation of marks of all the candidates who appeared in the paper.

Qualifying in GATE 2017 does not guarantee either an admission to a post-graduate program or a scholarship/assistantship. Admitting institutes may conduct further tests and interviews for final selection.

Dear Sir,

Kindly let me know when I should fix the date for the Campus Placement..

The interview will be done through Skype. (And as per my last year's experience 10 -20 minutes, it takes for one interview through Skype.)

I guess coming Tuesday/Wednesday, (5-6 the February 2019) may be the proposed dates. Or let me know any other dates...

It will be very helpful if we fix the date by tomorrow.
